FIRST IMPRESSIONS, OR NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY NATHANIEL P. WILLIS.

The Maid of Athens—romance and reality—American benefactions to Greece—a Greek wife and Scottish husband—school of Capo d'Istrias—Grecian disinterestedness—ruins of the most ancient temple—beauty of the Grecian landscape—hope for the land of Epaminondas and Aristides.

Island of Egina.—The "Maid of Athens," in the very teeth of poetry, has become Mrs Black of Egina! The beautiful Teresa Makri, of whom Byron asked back his heart, of whom Moore and Hobhouse, and the poet himself have written so much and so passionately, has forgotten the sweet burthen of the sweetest of love songs, and taken the unromantic name, and followed the unromantic fortunes of a Scotchman!

The commodore proposed that we should call upon her on our way to the temple of Jupiter this morning.—We pulled up to the town in the barge, and landed on the handsome pier built by Dr Howe, (who expended thus, most judiciously, a part of the provisions sent from our country in his charge,) and, finding a Greek in the crowd, who understood a little Italian, we were soon on our way to Mrs Black's. Our guide was a fine, grave-looking man of forty, with a small cockade on his red cap, which indicated that he was, some way, in the service of the government. He laid his hand on his heart, when I asked him if he had known any Americans in Egina. "They built this," seid he, pointing to the pier; the handsome granite posts of which we were passing at the moment. "They gave us bread, and meat, and clothing, when we should otherwise have perished."—It was said with a look and tone that thrilled me. I felt as if the whole debt of sympathy, which Greece owes our country, were repaid by this one energetic expression of gratitude.

We stopped opposite a small gate, and the Greek went in with our cards. It was a small stone house of a story and a half, with a rickety flight of wooden steps at the side, and not a blade of grass or sign of a flower in court or window. If there had been but a geranium in the porch, or a rose-tree by the gate, for description's sake!

Mr Black was out—Mrs Black was in. We walked up the creaking steps, with a Scotch terrier barking and snapping at our eeels, and were met at the door by, really, a pretty woman. She smiled, as I apologized for our intrusion, and a sadder or a sweeter smile I never saw. She said her welcome in a few, simple words of Italian, and I thought there were few sweeter voices in the world. I asked her, if she had not learned English yet. She colored, and said, "No, signore!" and the deep red spot in her cheek faded gradually down, in tints a painter would remember. Her husband, she said, had wished to learn her language, and would never let her speak English. I began to feel a prejudice against him. Presently, a boy of, perhaps, three years, came into the room, an ugly, white-headed, Scotch-looking little ruffian, thin-lipped, and freckled, and my aversion for Mr Black became quite decided. "Did you not regret leaving Athens?" I asked. "Very much, signore," she answered, with half a sigh; "but my husband dislikes Athens." Horrid Mr Black! thought I.

I wished to ask her of Lord Byron, but I had heard that the poet's admiration had occasioned the usual scandal attendant on every kind of pre-eminence, and her modest and timid manners, while they assured me of her purity of heart, made me afraid to venture where there was even a possibility of wounding her. She sat in a drooping attitude on the coarsely-covered divan, which occupied three sides of the little room, and it was difficult to believe, that any eye but her husband's had ever looked upon her, or that the "wells of her heart" had ever been drawn upon for any thing deeper than the simple duties of a wife and mother.

She offered us some sweetmeats, the usual Greek compliment to visiters, as we rose to go, and laying her hand upon her heart, in the beautiful custom of the country, requested me to express her thanks to the commodore for the honour he had done her in calling, and to wish him and his family every happiness. A servant girl, very shabbily dressed, stood at the side door, and we offered her some money, which she might have taken unnoticed. She drew herself up very coldly, and refused it, as if she thought we had quite mistaken her. In a country where gifts of the kind are so universal, it spoke well for the pride of the family, at least.

I turned after we had taken leave, and made an apology to speak to her again; for, in the interest of the general impression she had made upon me, I had forgotten to notice her dresss, and I was not sure that I could remember a single feature of her face. We had called unexpectedly, of course, and her dress was very plain. A red cloth cap bound about the temples, with a coloured shawl, whose folds were mingled with large braids of dark brown hair, and decked with a tassel of blue silk, which fell to her left shoulder, formed her head dress. In other respects she was dressed like an European. She is a little above the middle height, slightly and well formed, and walks weakly, like most Greek women, as if her feet were too small for her weight. Her skin is dark and clear, and she has a colour in her cheek and lips that looks to me consumptive. Her teeth are white and regular, her face oval, and her forehead and nose form the straight line of the Grecian model—one of the few instances I have ever seen of it. Her eyes are large and of a soft, liquid hazel, and this is her chief beauty. There is that "looking out of the soul through them," which Byron always described as constituting the loveliness that most moved him. I made up my mind, as we walked away, that she would be a lovely woman any where. Her horrid name, and the unprepossessing circumstances in which we found her, had uncharmed, I thought, all poetical delusion that would naturally surround her as the "Maid of Athens." We met her as simple Mrs Black, whose Scotch husband's terrier had worried us at the door, and we left her, feeling that the poetry which she had called forth from the heart of Byron was her due by every law of loveliness.

From the house of the maid of Athens we walked to the school of Capo d'Istrias. It is a spacious stone quadrangle, inclosing a court handsomely railed and gravelled, and furnished with gymnastic apparatus. School was out, and perhaps a hundred and fifty boys were playing in the area. An intelligent looking man accompanied us through the museum of antiquities, where we saw nothing very much worth noticing, after the collections of Rome, and to the library, where there was a superb bust of Capo d'Istrias, done by a Roman artist. It is a noble head, resembling Washington.

We bought a large basket of grapes for a few cents in returning to the boat, and offered money to one or two common men who had been of assistance to us, but no one would receive it. I italicize the remark, because the Greeks are so often stigmatized as utterly mercenary.

We pulled along the shore, passing round the point, on which stands a single fluted column, the only remains of a magnificent temple of Venus, and, getting the wind, hoisted a sail, and ran down the northern side of the island five or six miles, till we arrived opposite the mountain on which stands the temple of Jupiter Panhellenios. The view of it from the sea was like that of a temple drawn on the sky. It occupies the very peak of the mountain, and is seen many miles on either side by the mariner of the Egean.

A couple of wild-looking handsome fellows, bare-headed and bare-legged, with shirts and trousers reaching the knee, lay in a small caique under the shore; and, as we landed, the taller of the two laid his hand on his breast, and offered to conduct us to the temple. The ascent was about a mile.

We toiled over ploughed fields, with here and there a cluster of fig-trees, wild patches of rock and briar, and an occasional wall, and arrived breathless at the top, where a cool wind met us from the other side of the sea with delicious refreshment.

We sat down among the ruins of the oldest temple of Greece after that of Corinth. Twenty-three noble columns still lifted their heads over us, after braving the tempests of more than two thousand years. The ground about was piled up with magnificent fragments of marble, preserving, even in their fall, the sharp edges of the admirable sculpture of Greece. The Doric capital, the simple frieze, the well-fitted fneta, might almost be restored in the perfection with which they were left by the last touch of the chisel.

The view hence comprised a classic world. There was Athens! The broad mountain over the intensely blue gulf at our feet was Hymettus, and a bright white summit as of a mound between it and the sea, glittering brightly in the sun, was the venerable pile of temples in the Acropolis. To the left, Corinth was distinguishable over its low Isthmus, and Megara and Salamis, and following down the wavy line of the mountains of Attica, the promontory of Suniam, modern Cape Colonna, dropped the horizon upon the sea One might sit out his life amid these loftily placed ruins, and scarce exhaust in thought, the human history that has unrolled within the scope of his eye.

We passed two or three hours wandering about among the broken columns, and gazing away to the main and the distant isles, confessing the surpassing beauty of Greece. Yet have its mountains scarce a green spot, and its vales are treeless and uninhabited, and all that constitutes desolation is there, and strange as it may seem, you neither miss the verdure, nor the people, nor find it desolate. The outline of Greece, in the first place, is the finest in the world. The mountains lean down into the vallies, and the plains swell up to the mountains, and the islands rise from the sea, with a mixture of boldness and grace altogether peculiar. In the most lonely parts of the Egean, where you can see no trace of a human foot, it strikes you like a foreign land. Then the atmosphere is its own, and it exceeds that of Italy, far. It gives it the look of a landscape seen through a faintly tinted glass. Soft blue mists of the most rarified and changing shades envelop the mountains on the clearest day, and without obscuring the most distant points perceptibly, give hill and vale a beauty that surpasses that of verdure. It has the same effect on the herbless and rocky scenery about us, as a veil over the face of a woman.

The islander who had accompanied us to the temple, stood on a fragment of a column, still as a statue, looking down upon the sea towards Athens. His figure for athletic grace of mould, and his head and features, for the expression of manly beauty and character, might have been models to Phidias. The beautiful and poetical land, of which he inherited his share of unparalleled glory, lay around him. I asked myself why it should have become as it seems to be, the despair of the philanthropis. Why should its people, who, in the opinion of Childe Harold, are "nature's favorites still," be branded and abandoned as irreclaimable rogues, and the source to which we owe, even to this day, our highest models of taste, be neglected and forgotten? The nine day's enthusiasm for Greece has died away, and she has received a king from a family of despots.—But there seems to me in her very beauty, and in the still superior qualities of her children, wherever they have room for competition, a promise of resuscitation. The convulsions of Europe may leave her soon to herself, and the slipper of the Turk and the hand of the Christian, once lifted fairly from her neck, she will rise and stand up amid these imperishable temples, once more free!

INDESTRUCTIBLE BLACK WRITING INK.
It is known that Chlorine, (muriatic acid diluted with water) when passed with a feather of a quill over writing made with common Ink will destroy it, and the same place can be again written on, and the date, sum, or condition of any writing or agreement be altered. This valuable Ink has been tested chemically, and is found to be indestructible by the action of any known acids. Any chemical agent, which removes this ink must also remove the paper upon which it is written. This property, rendering it inaccessible to the arts of forgers and counterfeiters, is an extremely valuable one, and one which addresses itself to every Banking and other Corporations, and to every citizen of the Mercantile and Professional community. It is now offered for the public use; and the proprietor only asks a fair trial of its merits.
This ink is now used in the Office of the Government of the State of Maine by many eminent Lawyers and Public Officers, and by most of the Merchants of Portland, who are desirous to have their accounts unalterable. This Ink has also been highly approved of by all the Professors of Bowdoin College, and the certificate of Professor Cleaveland, a distinguished chemist, is hereunto annexed:
'Brunswick, June 6, 1834.
'It is hereby certified, that Mons. Le Bron has requested me to examine some ink of his manufacture, with reference to its power of resisting the action of chemical agents. I found its power of resisting chlorine and solution of Potassa, decidedly superior to any record ink with which I am acquainted.

For seats or extra coaches in Boston, apply at Doolittle's City Tavern, Brattle street, and Washington Coffee House, 158 Washington street. Boardman, and at the Sun Tavern.

STENOGRAPHIC GLIMPSES OF CONGRESS.—No. 179.

Washington, June 27th, 1834.—To-day was principally passed by the Senate in debating the Post Office Reports. The Vhigs had most of the talk to themselves. Two of the Committee, Ewing and Clayton, are goaded into frenzy by the attacks made upon them by the presses. Clayton made a fine display of exasperated patriotism; and threatened, since he had been attacked so, to push the investigation all lengths! They will have a committee sitting during the recess, and the House will appoint another. Mr Clay made a speech or two on the Reports; and flattered up the Committee to the very choking point; so that, I fear, with rage and vanity, they may swell to bursting. No other reason can be given for wasting a day in this useless debate, than that the Senate were in hopes of making it an argument for prolonging the session a week: but the House cannot afford another hour beyond the time fixed.

All the more important appropriation bills are passed. Strong opposition was made in the Senate against any more appropriations for the "internal improvements" of the District; but the appropriations will be carried, for a majority of the Senate are in favor of them; and some how or other, most every thing is carried by the House, which the District asks for.

The Senate sat till near 10, and the House till 11 to-night. In the former, the nominations of Gov. Forsyth, for the State, and Gov. Woodbury, for the Treasury Departments, passed without a dissenting voice: and I may add, that both the party and popular voice are equally unanimous. An opposition gentleman brought the news into the gallery this evening the moment the nominations had passed, and all parties seemed to hail it with equal approbation.—How long this fit of unanimity with the Senate is likely to last, you may guess as well as myself.

To-morrow a nomination will be presented for the vacancy in the Navy department. At this present moment the name is considered doubtful by many: the chance lays between two honorable gentlemen of Pennsylvania. You will not be at a loss to conjecture whom I mean. They both have strong friends; and have both rendered eminent services; and I should not feel surprised if the President would be as much puzzled to decide between them as Mr Clay was in another case, where he "took up the claims of Gen. J. and weighed them and laid them down; and then took up the claims of Mr A. and weighed them and laid them down; and was never so much puzzled in his life, to decide between the claims of the respective candidates!"—To-morrow will doubtless decide the "claims" of both candidates.

For two nights the ladies' gallery has exhibited a brilliant galaxy of beauty and fashion; they debated a great many more subjects than the House; and there was not a "bill" among all these birds of Paradise, but what was "engrossed" in conversation! What a delightful task would it be to have the first reading of their bills!

REIS EFFENDI.

The remarks in the Mercantile Journal, intending to convey the impression that we misstated a fact in saying that Gilman Stanley, Josiah Reed, William H. Skinner and Eldad Whiting are citizens of Charlestown, are ingenious but not ingenuous. The pious and "conscientious" Journal, although it seems to be telling the truth, insinuates a falsehood. That the individuals above named, who signed the Bank memorial as citizens of Boston, are not citizens of Boston, but of another town, remains undenied. We do not doubt that they may have been in Boston when they signed the Bank Memorial. The Tory Whigs pressed almost every man and boy whom they caught in the city, from whatever place he came, to sign for the British Bank. They were not more active for the British during the late war, than for the British Bank last winter. In some instances, where individuals refused to sign, their names were borrowed. The Providence Rail Road people to whom we alluded as having signed the British Bank Memorial, are neither citizens of Boston nor of the State, and some of them, we have been told, are British subjects.

☞ We received yesterday a pamphlet of twenty-four pages, containing an "Address of WILLIAM T. BARRY, Postmaster General, to the People of the U. S.," exposing the falsehoods, and triumphantly repelling the base personal allusions and imputations contained in the Report of the majority of the Senatorial Post Office Committee. We shall publish it to-morrow.

Samuel Townsend, of Sudbury, signed the Bank Memorial of the citizens of Boston. He told the Committee, at the time of signing, that he did not belong to the city! Nevertheless they received his name, and now have the impudence to say that no one signed their memorial, with their knowledge, who did not belong to the city.

Wanted.—Three thousand well dressed ladies for the 4th of July instant, to do guard duty for the Vhigs on the common; should the weather be hot, they will be supplied with the same number of parasols—the same used at Lowell last summer. It will be some inducement to those desirous of accepting the invitation, to know that they will here be out of the way of the Trades Union, and that they will be regaled with the "music" of the Vhig knives and forks, gratis. Apply to the "man with a short jacket, close by the money draw, behind the counter," Exchange street.

"Who is Charles P. Lightuing, on the anti-bank memorial?" said a Vhig to a Democrat, the other day, in State street. "He is cousin to Alexander H. Thunder, on the bank mamorial, and father-in-law to all the little clouds of your party," was the pertinent reply.

We can speak from observation of Mons. Saubert's performances at Julien Hall; and we assure all who are anxious to pass an evening agreeably, that they cannot do better than give him a call. His feats of legerdemain are truly astonishing, and are performed with great dexterity.

The Atlantic Insurance Company has declared a semi-annual dividend of five per cent. The Franklin Insurance Co. six per cent.

The celebration on the Common on the 4th inst. will be commenced by an oration from Orator Emmons.

POLICE COURT.

Liberty or Death.—Aaron Perkins, a colored man of gallantry, who was sent to the house of correction, last April, for having led captive the affections of a white lady, took it into his head to go a Maying, on the first day of that delightful month, without first having obtained the advice and consent of the honorable officers of the prison. He had been set to work in the garden, and his absence was not discovered till about noon, when an officer was dispatched after him, and brought him back. In defending himself, Aaron said—"The officers of the prison kicked and cuffed me, and done me out of my rations on Sundays, becase as I had never been there before, I warnt acquainted with their carryings on, and so could'nt shut my door in the evening jist at the minute that the knowing ones did; and besides, I broke my thigh when I was 10 year old, and could'nt hitch in well in the lock-step, and when I missed a step they docked my grub, and says I to myself, 'I tink I may as good die one way as anoder,' and so I cut, and made my escape."

On the other hand, the keeper of the house of correction, stated that Perkins was extremely intractable, and was in consequence subjected to the regular punishments of the establishment. He was fully committed for trial at the Municipal Court. The term of his former sentence expired yesterday.

Rescuing a Prisoner.—On Sunday afternoon, there was a general riot in Broad street, which the officers stationed in that section of the city, partially quelled, and bore off one of the rioters from the scene of uproar. He was a real squermer, and would neither walk nor run, but firmly curled both his legs round one of special constable Palmer's uprights, in such a manner as to prevent him from going a-head; and while constable Shute was prying his legs open with an umbrella, John Harney mingled in the rough and tumble, and swearing at what he termed the "tallow faced catchpoles," succeeded in wresting the rioter from the clutches of the police. Notwithstanding this, he assured the court, "It is visible to every creature in the street that I'm a peaceable man."—Bound over in $100.

John Redding—an ill-contrived bunch of bone and muscle, standing 6 feet 2, without stockings, was brought up for riotous conduct in Ann street, on Sunday. He was fierce for whipping any 20 men of his inches in the mob, and announced himself as "a commodore's carpenter's mate, and knew that the commodore would uphold him in anything he had a mind to do." When examined, he was "sure he never did anything out of the way in his life," but as there was no commodore or carpenter to back him up in the assertion, he was committed for trial at the Municipal Court

A Short Creed.—Henry Williams, for fast driving in a Church Alley on Sundays ago, was fined $3, and costs. The case was rather an aggravated one. Defence set up—ignorance of the law, and a short residence in this country. The stable-keeper then took out a writ against him, for mal-treatment of the horse, and he now lies in jail on the civil process. In reply to a remark of the Court, respecting letting out horses on the Sabbath, the owner observed, "that he did not know one day from another; and only believed in letting his horses, and getting his money for them."

Dr. Divine.—In our report of Pelham's case yesterday, we stated the facts in such a manner as to impute dishonorable conduct to Dr Divine, in relation to certain notes; but we learn, from one of the joint contractors with him, whom it was supposed that he had wronged, that no blame or suspicion attaches to him whatever, and that he is now faithfully fulfilling his engagement.

WHIG CELEBRATION OF THE 4th OF JULY.

"The price of Tickets has been fixed by the Committee at one dollar, which sum falls within the means of every citizen. The number is necessarily limited, and no person will be admitted to the Pavilion without one. They are now on sale and may be purchased on application to any member of the Committee of arrangements.—Bank paper.

Will the Whig presses inform the public what the dinner is to cost? Also, how much certain U. S. Bank Directors, and others, owning a great quantity of manufacturing stock, have subscribed to pay the expenses of the "Whig celebration?" Also, how many tickets have been GIVEN AWAY?

A great deal has been said, lately, about "bribery and corruption," in the columns of the Whig presses. Is there not a small spice of these virtues in the conduct of the Whig leaders, when they sell tickets for one dollar each, which cost three or four?

A LOOKER ON.

The Steambort Bangor anchored in the Roads, at five o'clock yesterday morning, and came up about ten o'clock, opposite the end of Long wharf, where she now lays at anchor. She made her passage from New York in thirty-eight hours, exclusive of stoppages—distance 420 miles, half of which was performed against wind and tide, and, during the passage of the Sound, against a north-east storm, and a heavy sea.

The Trades Union are to have a splendid celebration on the 4th. They will dine at Faneuil Hall, and pitch their tent on Fort Hill.

The North American Review for July, was published on the first instant, also the New England Magazine, Ladies Magazine, and the Penny Magazine.

Errata.—Thatcher Magaw was printed in yesterday's Post instead of Thatcher Magoun—and Freeman Clark instead of Truman Clark.

The scarlet fever is raging to a considerable extent in Fayette, Miss.

City Affairs.—At a meeting of the Mayor and Aldermen on Monday:

The committee appointed to consider and report what measures it is expedient for the City Council to take in relation to the death of General Lafayette, reported sundry resolutions, declaring the public sense on this melancholy occasion, and that the citizens of Boston fully participated in those emotions of heartfelt grief with which his death is now lamented by the whole American people. And they recommend that a badge of mourning be worn by the members of the City Council, and the citizens generally, for thirty days from the 1st of July: read and adopted, and sent to the common council for concurrence.

Petition of William S. Wait, and others, for the use of Fort Hill on the 4th of July, for the purpose of hearing an oration: read and granted.

For the Boston Morning Post.

Concord, (N. H.) June 27, 1834.

Mr Greene, Sir—I noticed in the Atlas of the 16th instant, some strictures of a correspondent of that paper upon the debates that were had in our Hall of Representatives on the passage of some resolutions approving the administration of GEN. JACKSON.

This correspondent has the modesty to call the free citizens of this State slaves, who dare do no other than follow in the wake of Washington "dictation."

This business of letter writing, it seems, is not confined to Washington; in New Hampshire, as in all other parts of the country, hangers-on to our public assemblies are to be employed to spread before the people false reports of their proceedings, hoping by underrating the efforts of democrats and extolling their own partizans beyond measure, to verify their oft repeated boast that "all the talent, all the learning, and all the religion," are on the side of the opposition.

This is in perfect keeping with themselves; failing in argument, and having no confidence in the justness of their cause, they resort to artifice, trick and falsehood.

Indeed this puffing seems to be the settled order of the day, with the opposition throughout the country. Henry Clay, in each successive speech, surpasses all that have gone before, when the god-like deigns to thunder—Wilkins, Grundy, Forsyth and Benton cower in mute astonishment! And here, forsooth, when "the tall figure of Mr Wilson is seen to rise," such pigmies as Messrs Gove and Atherton, are completely annihilated.

But the confidence of the American people in the present administration remains unshaken, and daily grows stronger, in spite of their boasted logic and eloquence, their low sarcasm and vulgar wit.

Sir, I am a citizen and son of the Granite State: have been present during the present session of the Legislature, and attended the debates upon the passage of those resolutions, and can tell the veritable correspondent of the Atlas, I have the means of knowing that the resolutions originated here, and came spontaneously from the Representatives of a free people; that the whining cant of "dictation" is not recoguized in New Hampshire; that her sons are not the supple tools he would represent them.

In proof of what I say, I would refer to the experience of the numerous political aspirants who have attempted to lord it over them, and lead them astray. How was it in 1828, when the Bells, Bartletts and Plumers fled off in a tangent and bid them follow? Let the political fate of those individuals answer—and let the general execration in which they are now held in New Hampshire be a warning beacon to all future aspirants and political disorganizers.

As to the debaters, any one who has ever heard Col. Wilson, knows that he has more of declamation and rant, than real eloquence or logic. With the voice of a Stentor and a garrulousness peculiarly his own, he husbands an idea well, and spins out into a long argument, what a man of method and arrangement would say in five minutes. Upon the subject matter of the resolutions he did not do even himself justice; and so far from annihilating Messrs Gove and Atherton, his own friends pronounced his effort a perfect failure. Mr Edwards, his colleague, though an interesting debater, made the most of a bad cause; his remarks were more pertinent, and his thoughts better arranged, and such as left rather a favorable impression of the man—but no impartial observer, I apprehend, would think of placing him in the first rank of our debaters. The gentleman from Exeter, with his usual supply of wind and sail, [illegible] ceed in convincing the House, he succeeded in what he seldom fails to accomplish—in raising a most hearty expectoration, and causing the spit boxes, in all the wildness of satyrs, to dance for joy.

But the most distressing speech of all, was that of which the gentleman from Charlestown was delivered—he was under the high pressure without a safety valve—surcharged, and went off without a match, and, like an exploded rocket, fell bewildered in doubt and in darkness. It was whispered round the hall during his mazy speech, that if the country was as much distressed as Mr Gordon, it was to be pitied.

The remarks of Mr Atherton were made in a cool dispasionate manner, showing an intimate acquaintance with the political history of the country, portraying in the clearest light, the alarming powers and dangerous tendency of the United States Bank, and fortifying by precedent and the highest authority, every principle contained in the resolutions.

The gentleman from Goffstown, with his usual independence and ability, replied in general to the opposers of the resolutions—and if Col Wilson or any any of his supporters, feel that they have gained any advantage in this debate—surely no one who heard both parties will envy him the laurels he has won.

It was evidently an uphill business for the opposition, and we were willing they should have their full share of talking—many of our able debaters remained perfectly silent.

Let the retained libelers of the opposition say what they will, I will turn out any fifteen or twenty from the Democratic ranks against a like number of picked men of their party, upon any debateable subject. In fact it is admitted on all hands—and what is not distrusted here—that the weight of talent, character and argument in the House, is on our side.

An honest man of their party said to one of our folks the other day, you can argue or vote us down—but we can hawk you down—talk you down or drink you down. Here we yield the palm.

More of Ewing's Veracity.—The majority of the P. O. Committee asserts that Mr Bennett, of the firm of Hay and Bennett, mail contractors from Bellefonte to Meadville, obtained an extra allowance of 500 dollars a year, for increased expedition, and that Bennett thereupon purchased an opposition press, and arrayed it on the side of the administration—Mr Bennet is dead, and Ewing and his friends thought that it afforded them an excellent opportunity for a romance. The brother of Mr Bennett, who purchased Hay's share of the contract, is fortunately alive, and he proves that the deceased never owned a press, and never had an interest in one, that he never was the editor of any newspaper, and that the whole statement is a gross misrepresentation. The extra allowance was for extra services, honestly and faithfully rendered, and was barely sufficient to cover the increased expenditure. Major Bennett, the surviving brother, is opposed to the present administration, and a man of the greatest respectability. He expresses the greatest astonishment in regard to the singular perversions and misstatements of the majority Report, so far as he is concerned, and declares that the minority have stated the facts correctly.—Pennsylvanian.

The Cumberland Road Bill has been approved by the President, and is now a law. It appropriates $200,000 for continuing the road in Ohio; $150,000 for Indiana; and $100,000 for Illinois—$450,000 in all. The further sum of $300,000 is appropriated for repairs of the road on this side of the Ohio, and to carry into effect the laws of Maryland, Pennsylvania, and Virginia.—When that amount is exhausted, the act directs the road to be surrendered to the States within which it lies—the United States to be discharged from all further liabilities for repairs.

Accident.—In firing a salute with a small swivel from the T wharf yesterday morning, in honor of the arrival of the steamer Bangor, the gun exploded, in the act of ramming the cartridge, and Mr John Thompson was severely wounded.

In sailing up the harbor the Bangor got entangled in a fleet of wood coasters, and carried away the bowsprit of one of them. No other accident of the slightest nature, has occurred during her passage.—Trans.

Accident.—Yesterday afternoon, as one of the Harlem Rail Road locomotives was leaving Yorkville, with two cars attached, the boiler burst, and killed one man and wounded two others.—Monday's N.Y. Gaz.

CORRESPONDENCE

Between the President of the United States and the Hon. R. B. Taney, upon the subject of the resignation of his office as Secretary of the Treasury.

Washington, June 25, 1834.

SIR:—The Senate having yesterday refused to confirm my nomination, as Secretary of the Treasury, I beg leave to resign the commission with which you honored me, during the last recess. It would expire, by its own limitation, at the end of the present session of Congress, which is now at hand. But after the appointment has been submitted to the Senate, and acted on by them, it is due to you and to myself, that I should conform to their decision, and retire at once from the office.

I cannot, however, take my final leave of the official relations which have connected me with your administration, without returning my cordial thanks for the many and continued proofs of kindness and confidence which I have received at your hands. I shall always bear them in grateful recollection, and am, sir, with the highest respect, Your ob't serv't,

R. B. TANEY.

The President of the United States.

Washington, June 25, 1834.

Dear Sir:—Your resignation of the appointment of Secretary of the Treasury, conferred upon you in the recess of the Senate, and now relinquished in consequence of the refusal of that body to confirm your nomination, has been received.

I cannot refrain from expressing on this occasion, my profound regret at the necessity of your retirement from that important office, nor can I suffer the opportunity to pass, without paying a just tribute to the patriotism, firmness, and ability which you have uniformly exhibited since your introduction into my cabinet. Knowing that such a station was not desired by you, and was in opposition to your course of life, I could not but feel grateful to you, when, in compliance with my invitation, you exchanged the independence of your professional pursuits, for the labors and responsibilities of the office of Attorney General of the United States. This sentiment was greatly and deservedly increased, during the last year, when, upon becoming acquainted with the difficulties which surrounded me, and with my earnest desire to avail myself of your services in the Treasury Department, you generously abandoned the studies and avocations to which your life had been devoted, and encountered the responsibility of carrying into execution those great measures which the public interest, and the will of the people alike demanded at our hands. For the prompt and disinterested aid thus afforded me at the risk of personal sacrifices, which were then probable, and which have now been realized, I feel that I owe you a debt of gratitude and regard, which I have not the power to discharge. But, my dear sir, you have all along found support in a consciousness of right, and you already have a sure promise of reward in the approbation and applause which an intelligent and honest people always render to distinguished merit.

The plan of financial policy which you have intimated by your acts, and developed in your official reports, and which has thus far received the full approbation of the Representatives of the People, will ultimately, I trust, be carried into complete operation; and its beneficial effects on the currency of the country, and the best interests of society, will be in all future time, more than an adequate compensation for the momentary injustice to which you have now been subjected. And as it is the martyrs in any cause, whose memory is held most sacred, so the victims in the great struggle to redeem our Republic from the corrupting domination of a great monied power, will be remembered and honored, in proportion to their services, and their sacrifices.

I am, very respectfully, and sincerely,
Your friend and ob't serv't,
ANDREW JACKSON.

Hon. R. B. Taney.

The Albany Argus states that the tolls collected upon the N. York canals for the fourteen days ending on the 21st of June, amount to the sum of seventy-two thousand nine hundred and sixty-eight dollars and forty-nine cents. The total amount of tolls collected upon all the canals, up to the 21st of June, (two and a half months) is four hundred and fifteen thousand nine hundred and thirty-one dollars.

NATHANIEL GREENE, Postmaster.

TO BE LET.—A convenient Chamber over Mr John H. Pray's Store—entrance No 46 Washington street. Inquire of BAKER & ALEXANDER. tf may21

A. WATKINS, THOMSONIAN BOTANIC PHYSICIAN—Infirmary, Harvard street, (opposite 499 Washington street,) Boston.—Has been acquainted with and possessed of a right to use Dr. Samuel Thomson's Patent Vegetable Medicine, for the last 21 years, and administered them in Europe, and South and North America, (including the West India Islands,) and with as much success as any other can, (with truth,) boast of. In the nine months' practice he has had at the Harvard street Infirmary, he has not had the misfortune to lose ONE patient, although many of them had been for years in the hands of the members of the Medical Faculty, and some of them abandoned to their (supposed) hopeless fate. As he is so well known in Boston, it is unnecessary to enter very largely into a detail of success. The following are a few of his patients:—

Stephen Gore, (inquire at Thomas Holland's Beach street, Boston,) totally blind for about 5 months, one eye, nearly destroyed, general debility, legs swollen and lame—appeared completely charged with poisons. General health restored; eye sight good—could see to read (without glasses) in 5 courses, &c. better than he could for seven years previous.

Mr. Parker, now assistant at the Infirmary, rheumatism and dyspepsia, cured in 3 courses.

Francis Kemlo, 153 Court street, Boston, severe indigestion and spasms, cured in four courses, &c.

Thomas Pierson, of Roxbury, and keeps a stall in the new Market, Boston,) erysipelas in the face and one eye; leg very much swollen and ulcerated from the knee to the ancle for the last 25 years—attended by many physicians; nearly cured in 5 weeks.

Miss Charlotte Pierson, do. white swelling, with loss of appetite, &c. under medical treatment 5 months, and unable to walk—cured in 3 weeks.

Jesse Brown, baker, of Roxbury, rheumatic and retrocedent gout; stomach, knees, ancles and toes greatly affected; has been confined to bed nine weeks—cured in 4 courses, &c.

Miss A. Brown, his daughter, scrofula or king's evil, cured with 4 courses, &c.

J. D. Smith, of Lexington, dyspepsia, of several years continuance—cured in 3 courses, &c.

Samuel Hawes, of Weymouth, rheumatism in the back, strictures in the urinary passage, general emaciation, &c.—cured in 6 courses, &c.

S. Smith, calico printer, of Lynn, pain in the stomach and back, and strictures across the breast, &c.—cured in 2 courses.

—— Toll, of Shepard street, Lynn, fits and severe cholic, from indigestion—cured in 2 days!

Benj. Morgan, of Salem, cancerous or scorbutic humors; hand ulcerated, debility and loss of flesh; piles severe, and unable to dress or undress himself for a considerable time—cured with 5 courses, &c.

Joseph Kerrier, of Salem, rheumatism in his shoulders and arms—cured in 2 courses, &c.

Sarah Town, of Andover, indigestion, severe pains throughout the system, and piles—cured with 3 courses, &c.

Mrs Lucinda Kerr, Sea street, Boston, salt rheum; top of the head one entire scab—cured in 4 courses, &c.

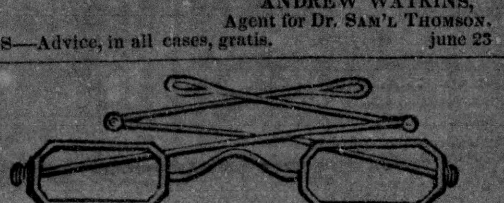

A. W. cannot be at the expense to enumerate more cases, at present. He has not named cases of fevers, they are almost too ephemeral in the hands of a physician acquainted with his duty—the ignoramus or continued fever, is unknown in the practice of such. Delicacy will not not permit the naming of several diseases, which he has treated with universal success. In almost all the cases of diseases which have been treated by him, he has been under the necessity to expel not only the disease, but the poisons which produced and continued them—and all with INNOCENT and HARMLESS SIMPLES.

This practice induces him to believe he is not too bold in saying, the Thomsonian treatment removes both disease and the poisons af the Medical Faculty from the human system, when resorted to in seasonable time.

For Medicine, Family Rights to use the same, Robinson's Lectures, &c. at the usual prices, apply as above, of

ANDREW WATKINS,
Agent for Dr. SAM'L THOMSON.

P. S—Advice, in all cases, gratis. june 23

PURE BEAR'S OIL may be had by the groce, dozen or single bottle, of A. BOYDEN, Hancock-st.

As in all cases, so especially in this, Venders, if they wish to secure the patronage of the public, should be extremely cautious not to sell an article for the Hair which tends to counteract rather than assist nature.

The virtues of Bear's Oil have been too long tested to need any eulogium; and at this time no one can doubt of its being the very best article for strengthening and promoting the growth of the Hair. An honest prejudice against the use of Bear's Oil has long existed, arising from two causes—the improper method of purifying it, and the imposition upon the public of a spurious article. That this prejudice may be wholly removed, this article now offered is warranted the pure Oil, rendered more pleasant by the addition of a little perfume—and the possibility of its injuring the Hair is entirely precluded by the manner in which it has been purified. To prevent fraud, the genuine is enclosed in two wrappers, the inside one being signed Arnold Boyden. aug 15
